

Helping you understand and explain hard market trends to your clients

Did you know? Severe weather across Canada continues to highlight the financial costs of climate change to insurers.

In 2018:

- Summer storms across the Prairies caused roughly $240 million in insured damage
- December storms in BC caused $37 million in insured damage

Traits of a hard market

Higher insurance premiums

Less competition among carriers

More stringent underwriting criteria

Reduced capacity and lower limits

AN INDUSTRY PERSPECTIVE

Costs are driving premium rate increases

The challenge in pricing insurance is based on market and regulatory framework. The focus needs to be on mitigation to get the best rates for your clients.

Property rates are increasing primarily due to weather catastrophes such as floods, wind, hail, and wildfires, across the country.

Prevention Tips: Visit our Climate Smart page to learn how your clients can safeguard their property from weather damage.

Auto rates are increasing due to new and increasingly expensive technology in cars, and rising bodily injury costs.

Prevention Tips: Good driving habits, and a lack of convictions and losses lower insurance premiums. For more information, visit our Emerging Trends in Auto takeaway sheet.

HOW DOES RSA HELP

Renewal release:

We release renewals well in advance of policy expiry to allow you time to review policies and examine the variables that could impact your customer's coverage needs.

Broker education:

We take the time to educate our brokers on emerging trends and changing economic & regulatory environments, while also providing the resources they need to prepare their clients for changing market conditions.
